This Week in Wabash

Hello, Wabash,

Happy Wednesday, everyone. I promise this is the last time I will mention this.
(Until it's time for the voting, but we'll get there when we get there.)

Now is the time to get your nominations in for this year's Best of Wabash contest.
Nominations will close at noon Thursday.

All nominations and voting are done online.

Please visit this link to get started.

After round one nominations are completed and we tally the votes to determine the top three winners of each category, we will begin the voting to select winners.

I checked the list of nominations yesterday and there were nearly 400 so far. That may sound like a lot, but when you consider the duplicates and the number of categories listed above, that's really not very many. I know there are people and businesses in this community worthy of the spotlight and now is your chance to make sure they get the shine they deserve. Don't let this opportunity pass us all by. And, please, if you've already voted, send the link on to everyone you know who might want to nominate, as well.

I hope you have a great rest of your week. Happy nominating. I'll talk with you next Wednesday.

Best,
Rob
